BACQUE, James (Jim) Watson
*19 May 1929 – *13 September 2019

From: Elisabeth Bacque
From: Tuesday, 17 September 2019

Hello friends Here is the notice we are putting in the local newspaper with the attached photo of Jim. We are doing well with lots of talent and help from our four children and their offspring. He will be missed

Jim died peacefully on Friday the 13th of September, a day of the full moon, after suffering a stroke. He stayed with us lucid and listening till the end so we had a chance to say goodbye. His sense of humour never failed him although his voice did. However his words and our memories continue and we are grateful for a long life, lived to the full.

Toronto Globe and Mail notice to follow.
BACQUE, James (Jim) Watson
Peacefully, after a short illness, on September 13, 2019 at the age of 90. Jim is remembered by his beloved wife of 64 years Elisabeth (née Marani), his children Susan (Simon), Catherine (Alan), Ben (Christy) and Andrew (Gemma), his grandchildren Jessica, Rachel (Graham), Sarah, Ella, Janet, Ian, Lisa (Matthew), Andrew, Mikey, Isabella, and his great grandchildren Leo and Willa.

He loved his family, delighted in his friends, the Georgian Bay, music, the Bahamas, canoeing, sailing and playing tennis with the ‘Sunshine boys’.

During his long literary career he was a journalist, editor (MacMillan of Canada), publisher (newpress), author of history, fiction, biography, plays and poetry, and was a founding member of the Writers’ Union of Canada. Jim had an unsurpassed and infectious joi de vivre.

A gathering will be held at St. James on-the-lines Church Hall, 200 Church Street, Penetanguishene on Saturday, September 28, 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

In his memory: raise a glass, plant a tree, sing a song, write a poem, make a gift, have a laugh.

Donations to Hospice Huronia www.hospichuronia.ca would be greatly appreciated.

Special thanks to the staff at the Georgian Bay General Hospital.

Other Losses One-Hour Documentary Film on DVD
After the Second World War, the Allies betrayed their own civilizing values – the Atlantic Charter, the Four Freedoms, and the Geneva Convention, destroying the moral worth of their great victory along with their victims. More German people were killed by allied action after the war than died during the war. At the same time leaders Herbert Hoover in the USA and P.M. Mackenzie King in Canada ran a massive food relief campaign that fed the world, finally including their former enemies. Hundreds of millions of lives were saved from death by starvation.

Never had such vengeance been committed; never had such mercy been shown.

This film, based on James Bacque’s books, Other Losses and Crimes and Mercies, uses eyewitness accounts and documentary evidence to tell the story accurately and compassionately.

Other Losses
Other Losses: an Investigation into the Mass Deaths of German Prisoners at the Hands of the Americans and the French after World War Two caused an international scandal when it was first published in 1989 by Stoddart, Toronto; MacDonald, London and Ullstein Verlag, Berlin (Der geplante Tod: Deutsche Kriegsgefangene in amerikanischen und französischen Lagern).

Bacque revealed that as a result of the policies of the Western Allies, some 1,000,000 German captives in U.S. and French camps in Northern Europe had died of maltreatment, exposure, disease and starvation. This important work has remained in print through many editions. Over 200,000 copies have been sold in eleven countries. Displayed are the covers for some of the foreign editions.
Crimes and Mercies: the Fate of German Civilians under Allied Occupation, 1945-1950 recounts how the allies deliberately denied food to Germans after World War Two, expelled ethnic Germans from their homes in the east, and plundered their industries, resulting in millions of civilian deaths.

However in 1946, concerned Americans and Canadians, under Herbert Hoover and Mackenzie King began to relieve the starvation with a food aid program which late in 1946 was extended to include the German people. This contradictory policy of revenge and mercy has never been fully examined before.

Crimes and Mercies was first published in English, by Little Brown in Canada and the U.K. in 1997. In German, it first appeared as Verschwiegene Schuld by Ullstein Verlag, Berlin in 1995, and was reissued in 2002 by Pour le Mérite. Over 30,000 copies sold in four countries.

Dear Enemy (with Richard Matthias Mueller)

James Bacque and Richard Mueller met in Germany while Bacque was doing research for a revision of his book Other Losses. At the end of World War Two, Mueller had been very young POW in an American Rhine meadow camp, and now was a writer and professor of English at a university in Aachen. They became friends and found much to discuss. Dear Enemy: Germany then and now evolved out of an exchange of their letters. This title is no longer in print. Anti-Semitic blogger who sang songs on YouTube comparing the Holocaust to a 'theme park' is JAILED after publishing 50 new posts in breach of a ban on social media use

- Alison Chabloz, 55, posted at least 50 times on her website over the past year
- Convicted in June last year for suggesting the Holocaust was a 'bunch of lies'
- She has been sentenced to eight weeks in prison and given a fine of £175

Alison Chabloz, 55, was today jailed for eight weeks for breaching a court order which banned her from posting to social media.

An anti-Semitic blogger who wore a white supremacist badge as she was convicted of broadcasting 'grossly offensive' songs has been jailed for illegally posting to her blog.

Alison Chabloz, 55, posted 'at least 50 times' on her website over the past year - a 'clear breach' of the terms of her suspended sentence.

Chabloz was convicted in June last year for writing three vile songs mocking the Holocaust, which she sang and uploaded to YouTube.

The songs suggested the Holocaust, which saw six million Jews killed by Nazi Germany during World War Two, was a 'bunch of lies' and referred to Auschwitz as a 'theme park'. She also mocked Anne Frank and laughed during her trial last year as the court heard how she mocked Jews being fashioned into lampshades, having their heads shrunk and being turned into bars of soap.

She was given a suspended prison sentence and banned from social media for 12 months.

Today, Chesterfield Magistrates Court heard that Chabloz had breached the order by posting to her personal blog, despite advice from probation officers not to do so.

The CPS highlighted three specific breaches of the order, but Chabloz herself admitted posting to the website more than 50 times.

Giving evidence to the court, Chabloz said she did not feel she was breaching the order as she believed her blog, hosted by WordPress, was distinct from social media.

Chabloz was convicted in June last year (pictured wearing a white supremacist badge as she arrived for her trial) for writing three vile songs mocking the Holocaust, which she sang and uploaded to YouTube.

Chabloz, of Glossop, Derbyshire, told the court she didn't post to Twitter or Facebook, or upload to YouTube, during the time she was banned.

She also argued that because she disabled the comments on her blog, there was no 'social interaction' between herself and people who viewed the content.

The court heard that the blog is Chabloz's sole source of income as it allows people to donate if they like her content.

When prosecutor Ian Shaw asked Chabloz if she considered people donating to her 'interaction', she replied: 'It's not really social interaction.'
Chabloz, pictured performing the anti-Semitic quenelle gesture, as she performs one of her songs online.

The songs suggested the Holocaust, which saw six million Jews killed by Nazi Germany during World War Two, was a 'bunch of lies' and referred to Auschwitz as a 'theme park'. Chabloz is pictured with her old band that she was kicked out of for being anti-Semitic.

Chabloz added: 'On Facebook and Twitter, people can see the replies.'

Steven Brown, of the probation service, told the court he had advised Chabloz not to post to the website.

But, he added, she was 'quite forthright' that she did not believe the order included her blog.

Chabloz appeared in court supported by her parents and four far-right sympathisers.

She also mocked Anne Frank and laughed during her trial last year as the court heard how she mocked Jews being fashioned into lampshades, having their heads shrunk and being turned into bars of soap.

She was also barred from her local Labour social club where she used to perform at pro-Palestinian events.

She was defended by Adrian Davies, formerly of the British Democratic Party, who has previously represented high-profile Holocaust denier David Irving.

Mr Davies told the court he felt the wording of the order was 'narrow' and that it was not clear to Chabloz the ban extended to her personal blog.

Judge Taaffe said: 'It is clear to me that Mrs Chabloz uses the website to share her views and promote her content.

'It is used to create content to be viewed and, if wished, shared.'
Chabloz was sentenced to eight weeks in prison and fined £175 to be paid within ten weeks.

'I am quite satisfied the order was clear. ‘Mrs Chabloz has chosen to embark on a course of conduct without advice.’

He imposed eight weeks of the suspended sentence and fined Chabloz £175, to be paid within ten weeks. He told her she will serve half of that sentence, on the condition that she works with the probation service.

Speaking after sentencing, Mr Davies, said he was ‘surprised’ the judge had found her guilty and insisted he would appeal the decision.

Holocaust denier Alison Chabloz handcuffed in court and jailed for breach of suspended sentence following action by CAA

Moments ago, notorious antisemite and Holocaust denier Alison Chabloz was jailed for eight weeks, of which she will serve at least four. She was also ordered to pay court costs of £175 within 10 weeks.

District Judge Jonathan Taaffe found Ms Chabloz guilty of breaching the conditions of her suspended sentence after blog posts that she published since June 2018 were found to constitute a breach of a social media ban. Ms Chabloz was handcuffed in court to begin her sentence as her parents, who were in attendance, looked on. The trial in Chesterfield today follows contact between Campaign Against Antisemitism’s lawyers and the National Probation Service.

Last year, Ms Chabloz was convicted on three charges of sending grossly offensive communications via a public communications network. That case began as a private prosecution by Campaign Against Antisemitism, which was then taken over and continued by the Crown Prosecution Service. The charges related to three self-penned songs in which she denounced a supposed Jewish conspiracy to dominate the world and attacked the Holocaust as a fraud perpetrated by Jews for financial gain.

The conviction set a new precedent in British law, effectively delivering a landmark precedent verdict on incitement on social media and on whether the law considers Holocaust denial to be "grossly offensive" and therefore illegal when used as a means by which to hound Jews.

Ms Chabloz was sentenced to a twenty-week prison sentence suspended for two years, 180 hours of unpaid community service, an indefinite order against contacting two leaders of Campaign Against Antisemitism, as well as an order banning her from social media for twelve months. She was also ordered to pay a £115 victim surcharge, and costs of £600. Earlier this year, the conviction and sentence were upheld at Southwark Crown Court, where Judge Christopher Hehir, sitting with lay magistrate Ms M Rego, said of Ms Chabloz, “She is a Holocaust denier...she is manifestly antisemitic and obsessed with the wrongdoing of Jews,” adding that, on the subject of the Holocaust, “she has lost all sense of perspective.”

Ms Chabloz has also been banned from entering France, where Holocaust denial is illegal, for forty years until 2059.

Stephen Silverman, Director of Investigations and Enforcement at Campaign Against Antisemitism, said: “We are delighted that justice has taken its proper course. Today’s trial follows contact between Campaign Against Antisemitism’s lawyers and the National Probation Service, and we are grateful for their cooperation. We hope that this sentence will send a message that antisemitism is unacceptable and that the courts will not hesitate to use the powers at their disposal to bring offenders to justice.”

Is History repeating itself?
Welcome Giordano Bruno & the Donation of Constantine & Holocaust Atrocity Propaganda!

The Crusades have begun anew – it’s all a repeat of 1095–1492.

There were a total of nine crusades! The first four crusades were seen as the most important and scant reference is made to the other crusades - with the exception of the Children’s Crusade which effectively led to the decline of the crusade.

Note the new Children’s Crusade: led by 16-year-old climate change activist Greta Thunberg at the UN General Assembly before whom she exclaimed, among other things:

You all come to us young people for hope! How dare you! You have stolen my dreams and my childhood with your empty words... We are in the beginning of a mass extinction and all you can talk about is money and fairytales of eternal economic growth.

Greta Thunberg:

But it’s nothing new. Remember the baby incubator testimony by Nayirah before the UN in 1992 used by the US to sell the Gulf War-Iraqi invasion? *

Such emotional blackmail, devoid of all factual reality, rests on the countless post-WWII false Holocaust horror stories that we have had to endure since the 1960s Frankfurt Auschwitz Trials? Globally such stories have been fed to students in compulsory Holocaust education programs.

Now in a new book Jürgen Graf reveals the names of some notable fraudsters who made a career out of defaming the German people and imbuing them with a crippling guilt complex that has been reinforced through draconian legal constraints. A review of Graf’s book will follow presently:

MENTAL & PHYSICAL LIBERATION IS OBLIGATORY – a moral duty!

Have the courage to use your own understanding!

Think of the German WWII UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER consequences.
Think of the Japanese Emperor-God demotion to mortal man.
Think of how two different races, Germans and Japanese, cooperated because of sharing, among others, two fundamental values: Cleanliness and Hard Work.

Then recall GENESIS 2: 16-17:
And the Lord God commanded the man, You are free to eat from any tree in the garden but you must not eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, for when you eat from it you will certainly die.
The aim of this devilish Genesis thought structure is to prevent Europeans from liberating themselves from Talmudic creationist lies, from the planned extermination and subjugation of the non-Jewish world as found in the expressed hatred in Talmud and Old Testament.

Remember German philosopher Martin Heidegger’s fundamental insight:
>>The Jews, with their marked gift for calculating, live, already for the longest time, according to the principle of race, which is why they are resisting its consistent application with utmost violence.<<
Hatred – Holocaust Denial – Antisemitism – Racism – NAZI are concepts used to close down any discussion where matters, such as the above Genesis quotation challenges exiting perverse power structures.

US President Donald Trump’s Speech:
The future does not belong to globalists and open borders.

... If you want freedom, take pride in your country; if you want democracy, hold on to your sovereignty, and if you want peace, love your nation ... the future does not belong to globalists; the future belongs to patriots; the future belongs to sovereign and independent nations who protect their citizens, respect their neighbours and honour the differences that make each country special and unique. Local collector's Hitler artifacts could fetch millions at German auction
By Pam Kragen, Sep. 25, 2019 – The San Diego Union-Tribune
Craig Gottlieb, 48, of Del Mar bought Nazi leader’s hat, uniform and medals in 2014 for more than $1 million. On Saturday in Germany, Adolf Hitler’s military uniform, visor hat and several medals will go on the auction block and could sell for upwards of $2 million, based on similar sales in recent years.

The Hitler artifacts are owned by Craig Gottlieb, 48, of Del Mar, a military artifacts dealer who purchased these and other items five years ago from a Long Beach collector for more than $1 million. His purchase at the time generated international headlines, many of them negative.

Over the years, Gottlieb — who is of Jewish ethnicity but is not religious — has grown accustomed to fierce criticism over how he could profit from items associated with the murder of millions of Jews and others in the Holocaust.

Gottlieb said he’s a small businessman and can’t afford to donate his collection, and the items he trades in have great historical merit. There are still people who deny the existence of Nazi atrocities and the Holocaust, so it’s important, he said, to preserve them for future generations, particularly in a time of growing anti-Semitism.

Alison Chabloz update!

On 26 September 2019 Alison was sent home because her appeal would most likely be heard after she had served the imposed sentence!

The Persecution of Alison Chabloz:

Latest News From The Kangaroo Courts September 24, 2019

Ian Millard 3 Comments
The satirical singer-songwriter Alison Chabloz has been imprisoned.

Yesterday, 23 September 2019, Alison Chabloz was sentenced, at Chesterfield Magistrates’ Court, Derbyshire, to 8 weeks’ imprisonment for breach of condition of the suspended sentence which was pronounced in June of 2018. The oddest aspect of that is that that particular condition was a “social media” ban lasting one year, so it actually expired in mid-June 2019. For the entire year, i.e. up to mid-June 2019, Alison Chabloz did not post on what everyone (except, it seems, minor “judges” — formerly called stipendiary magistrates— in the magistrates’ courts of Derbyshire) regards as “social media”, fora such as Twitter, Facebook, GAB etc. She did, however, continue to comment on her own WordPress website blog, on which she had disabled the readers’ comments section.

It is, admittedly, a long time since I was a practising barrister (2008) but certainly I have never seen a legal definition of what is or is not “social media”, by which I mean one accepted by the higher courts. What I do know is that virtually no-one thinks of a person’s own website as “social media”.

Apparently, the required Notice of Breach was only sent to Alison Chabloz after the year-long “social media” ban had actually expired! In other words, she was allowed (should she wish to and be able to) to post on Facebook or Twitter etc at any time after mid-June 2019; the Notice of Breach referred back to the time when the “social media” ban had been in place. It was like someone warning a second person, as it were, in arrrears, in such terms as “do not breach this condition but you can breach the condition now or in future (because it has expired), just don’t breach it in the past”! It was a nonsense “warning”, in short.

Background

In fact, it is clear that the moving force behind this latest prosecution-prosecution of Alison Chabloz had almost nothing to do with the privatized probation people, who are obviously just “pay peanuts get monkeys” doormats. The malicious Jew-Zionist “charity”, the “Campaign Against Anti-Semitism” or “CAA”, has in fact admitted that it was their pressure on the Ministry of Justice and on (now-washed-up) politician (MP, Secretary of State for Justice and so joke “Lord Chancellor” until July 2019) David Gauke, that caused the probation monkeys and the CPS suddenly (after more than a year...) to get agitated about Alison Chabloz continuing to post on her own blog website. See Notes, below.

Gauke is now sitting as Independent MP, having recently been sacked by the Conservative Party. He is married to a woman called Rachel, a lawyer, and lives in the “Borshch Belt” of South Hertfordshire, near London. He is, or has been, a noted expenses-blower. A freeloader. He was an active member of Conservative Friends of Israel. His political career is now washed-up.

Here is what the “CAA” had to say about Alison Chabloz being imprisoned:

“District Judge Jonathan Taaffe found Ms Chabloz guilty of breaching the conditions of her suspended sentence after blog posts that she published since June 2018 were found to constitute a breach of a social media ban. Ms Chabloz was handcuffed in court to begin her sentence as her parents, who were in attendance, looked on. The trial in Chesterfield today follows contact between Campaign Against Antisemitism’s lawyers and the National Probation Service.”

Note the (((typically))) sadistic tone: “they” love the fact (if it is a fact) that Alison Chabloz was apparently handcuffed in court post-trial, and that her aged parents had to see that. Despite that, it seems that some of the Jew-Zionists gleefully discussing the matter on Twitter have not quite had their pound of flesh. They want Alison Chabloz to be imprisoned for longer, suffer more etc.

Shakespeare was in some respects the greatest Englishman. The “CAA” admits to interfering in the probation conditions of Alison Chabloz (see above). The CAA was also the instigator of the original case against her, which was later taken over by the CPS. It was during the preliminary proceedings being taken by the CAA against Alison Chabloz that Stephen Silverman, “Head of Investigations and Enforcement” at the CAA, was exposed as a sadistic and pseudonymous troller of (mainly) women online, Alison Chabloz being one such. I have blogged about this previously. Please refer to Notes, below.

It seems that what happened here is that the CAA or its contacts pressured venal David Gauke in some way. He, at the time, was Secretary of State for Justice (absurd though that was); Gauke then wrote to his officials in the Ministry of Justice, who then gave both the CPS and the privatized probation monkeys a kick. Says a lot about “justice” in contemporary Britain...

So what now for Alison Chabloz?

[Update, 25 September 2019: Please see tweet by Mark Collett at foot of this article; it seems that Alison Chabloz is not at Foston Hall prison, but at New Hall prison]

Well, the sentence handed down was imprisonment for 8 weeks. Alison Chabloz will thus be in prison for 4 weeks minus the day of trial and the day of the preliminary appearance. By my calculations, she should be free on —or possibly before— 19 October 2019, having spent 26 days —possibly fewer— in prison.

Those days will be spent, it seems (subject to confirmation), at Foston Hall, Derbyshire, a closed prison for women. That sounds grim, but the place seems to be a more serious kind of Girls of Radcliff Hall boarding establishment (the former aspect not too literally, I’m sure).

*http://www.justice.gov.uk/contacts/prisonfinder/foston-hall

[Update, 25 September 2019: Please see tweet by Mark Collett at foot of this article; it seems that Alison Chabloz is not at Foston Hall prison, but at New Hall prison; I have posted the details of that prison below, at or near the end of this article]

After Alison has spent her mandated 3-4 weeks in prison, she will be free (as I understand the sentence handed down yesterday) to post both on her own website and on “social media” (as until yesterday understood) because, as explained here above, her “social media” ban expired in June 2019 anyway.

The unpaid work part of the original sentence (i.e. the most obviously punitive part of it) has already been chucked in the bin. The original conviction and sentence itself is now going to judicial review, having failed on appeal at Crown Court level; it may be that yesterday's decisions will be joined to that review; Adrian Davies, Counsel for Alison Chabloz, has told the newspapers that yesterday's verdict and sentence will be appealed. In the meantime, Alison is sitting in prison. Whether her legal people can get her released on bail pending appeal or review, I do not know.

Whatever happens in respect of appeal or judicial review, Alison Chabloz will be back posting views and, perchance, songs next month. "They" may be crowing over "their" victory, but what goes around comes around. Already, months ago, some quite high-profile Jews have tweeted (and in one or two cases, published in the Press) their view that Alison Chabloz should not have been prosecuted at all because her public profile has thus been raised greatly. Such persecution also awakens the sleeping masses to the Zionist strategy of trying to destroy freedom of expression in the UK.

The Zionists and their (often mentally-afflicted) "antifa" "useful idiots" have been waging a campaign to destroy Alison Chabloz's access to online donation platforms (by making "complaint" to those websites), but that is a mere inconvenience which will not stop her.

One thing is sure: if Alison Chabloz was determined to pursue her ideals and beliefs before, she must now be absolutely determined to nail them to public consciousness.

Update, 26 September, 2019

It seems that Counsel for Alison Chabloz, Adrian Davies, is going to try to get Alison bail pending appeal and so will be making preliminary application before the same District Judge (Criminal), District Judge Taaffe, today. The chances are that that will be refused, but after today application can be renewed in front of a real judge (a Circuit Judge), probably at Derby Crown Court, with at least a reasonable chance of success, bearing in mind that * the sentence (in reality less than 4 weeks) is short enough that any appeal would probably not come on before Alison has completed her 26 days in prison, thus rendering the appeal otiose;

* the probation people, on the relevant form, were expressly not thinking in terms of a custodial sentence (indeed had, literally, ticked another box); the "judge" did have discretion to ignore that fact, but only if he did so reasonably;
* a judicial review of the original sentence and subsequent appeal is already lodged.

Update from Alison herself …

Chabloz granted immediate release from prison on unconditional bail

Alison Chabloz September 28, 2019

All in all, my third experience of loss of liberty was the least unpleasant thus far. Indeed, compared to my first two lock-ups in November 2016 (six hours) and in October 2017 (48 hours) both in police cells, my short time at HMP New Hall was a joy ride.

Single, warm cell; TV, kettle, pillow, thick quilt, mattress, e-cigarette; a view over the prison wall of trees and the occasional glimpse of a squirrel or wood pigeon. Being in need of a good rest (not having been able to enjoy a few days’ holiday thanks to my aborted trip to Paris last month), I lazed, feet up; watched the news and a couple of films; drank endless cups of tea and vaped nicotine, in moderation…

HMP New Hall used to be a borstal and previously, during the war, a training camp.

My three nights were spent on the remand wing, the roughest and noisiest, where most new inmates are sent initially before being moved to one of the normal wings. I kept my head down most of the time. Only once on the second evening did I assert myself, after having been promised then denied my phone call. I was resolute in my protest, meaning I was eventually marched back to my cell. The next morning, Wednesday, I was finally bried and allowed to phone home.
I was disturbed to learn that one fellow newbie had been remanded awaiting trial for some relatively minor alleged role in a drugs offence, meaning separation from her two-year old daughter and four-month old baby son. Other new arrivals were regulars: drug users caught for shoplifting or burglary. These women did not seem unhappy about being back behind bars, quite the contrary in fact. “Here’s where I get clean, come off the drugs,” said one woman; as if the prison system provided at least some kind of structure in lives that were chaotic on the outside.

The prison is understaffed: 140 wardens for 400 inmates, with less than a third of officers on duty at one time. Staff were clearly exhausted by the end of their shifts. But they were cheery, kind and, in most cases, professional. Ditto for the medical staff, especially nurse Jane. Prisoners and staff alike were interested to hear my story and I even got to sing a couple of songs.

I was psychologically prepared and therefore coped as well as could be expected. It is not difficult to imagine that more vulnerable women perhaps would find it difficult to adapt and settle in. Then came the news that I was to be freed on unconditional bail. Paperwork meant that I was held for a further two and a half hours before finally greeting my parents who had driven over Woodhead Pass to collect me at the prison gate.

I am still ploughing through all the commentary. The vindictive tone of mainstream articles and of moderated below-the-line comments speaks for itself. Unsurprisingly, no mainstream report has been corrected to state that I have now been released pending appeal and been granted unconditional bail. Happily, independent reports have been far more balanced and reasoned.

Huge thanks especially to my Mum and Dad, to my barrister Adrian Davies, solicitor Kevin Lowry-Mullins and to those who made the trip last Monday to lend their support. Equally, thanks to everyone who blogged and campaigned on social media. After not starting off too well, the week has ended on something of a high, – although, even last Monday had its moments, as illustrated by the following anecdote, a small sign telling me I’m on the right path:

The court warden who cuffed me was the same warden who cuffed me in 2017 at Chesterfield Immediate Remand Court. We recognised each other and I reminded her that she had congratulated me when I had been released two years ago, and had told me that I was simply saying what everyone else was thinking but didn’t dare say out loud…

* Next scheduled court date will be my appeal in the High Court in London, October 31st – Hallowe’en special and of course Brexit Day… More details to follow.
