Ahmadinejad: Israel, U.S. won't strike Iran's nuclear facilities

While denying his views are anti-Semitic, Iran president tells Atlantic Monthly the entire world is forced to accept only one view of the Holocaust.

By Natasha Mozgovaya and Haaretz

Neither the United States nor Israel are capable of attacking Iran's nuclear facilities, the Atlantic Monthly quoted Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad as saying on Tuesday.

When asked whether or not he felt a military strike on Iran was feasible, Ahmadinejad was overheard by Atlantic Monthly reporters as saying: "I really don't think so."

"The Zionist regime is a very small entity on the map, even to the point that it doesn't really factor into our equation," the Iranian leader said, equally dismissing the possibility of an American strike.

"The United States has never entered a serious war, and has never been victorious," Ahmadinejad said, adding that "The United States doesn't understand what war looks like. When a war starts, it knows no limits."

Later on, the Iranian president again referred to his controversial remarks regarding the Holocaust, asking "why don't we allow this subject to be examined further... It is incorrect to force only one view on the rest of the world."

"We need to ask, where did this event occur, and why should the Palestinian people continue to suffer for it? I am not an anti-Semite. I am anti-Zionism."

"How come when it comes to the subject of the Holocaust there is so much sensitivity?" the Atlantic Monthly quoted Ahmadinejad as saying.

Earlier Tuesday, Ahmadinejad told a United Nations General Assembly session on poverty that capitalism was on the verge of extinction and that it was time for a new economic system.

"The discriminatory order of capitalism and the hegemonic approaches are facing defeat and are getting close to their end," Ahmadinejad said at a summit meeting assessing progress on achieving UN goals to drastically reduce poverty by 2015.

"The undemocratic and unjust governance structures of the decision-making bodies in international economic and political fields are the reasons behind most of the plights today humanity is confronting," he said, according to an English translation of his prepared remarks.

Ahmadinejad had drawn large crowds for previous UN speeches but Tuesday's address was delivered to a virtually empty hall.

It was unclear whether the unusually low attendance was due to waning interest in Ahmadinejad five years after he first addressed the assembly or if it was the fact that he was one of the first speakers in the morning session, which began at 9 A.M.

Ahmadinejad offered no clear alternative to capitalism but said, "The world is in need of an encompassing and, of course, just and humane order in the light of which the rights of all are preserved and peace and security are safeguarded." Ahmadinejad will address the 192-nation General Assembly again on Thursday during its annual General Debate, in which world leaders traditionally cover issues important to them.

In the past, Ahmadinejad has used the General Debate as a forum to defend Iran's nuclear program and assail its arch foes Israel and the United States, typically prompting walkouts by the United States and some European countries.

Meanwhile, the Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Washington (JCRC) sent a letter to the Hilton Manhattan East, hotel owners The Procaccianti Group, national headquarters of Hilton Worldwide, and Hilton's parent corporation Blackstone expressing dismay at the hotel's decision to host Iranian President Ahmadinejad and his delegation during the United Nations General Assembly this week in N.Y.

The letter states that the decision to welcome President Ahmadinejad and his delegation brought shame on the Hilton brand and the Procaccianti Group and inquired as to why Hilton was ignoring the international consensus to isolate the country.

A senior Iranian lawmaker has denounced as illegal Washington's refusal to issue visas for some members of an Iranian delegation to the UN General Assembly session.

"The United Nations is the home of all nations and all countries," he added. He said such measures would bring under question the legitimacy of the US to host the UN. Boroujerdi's remarks came after the US government refused to issue visas for 40 members of the Iranian delegation mostly reporters and lawmakers seeking to attend the 65th session of the United Nations General Assembly.

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad left Tehran for New York to attend the UN General Assembly session on Saturday.

Ahmadinejad told reporters before his departure that while in the United States, he would also take part in the Millennium Development Goals summit which will be attended by 140 heads of states.

He will also hold talks with officials from various countries. Foreign Minister Manouchehr Mottaki, senior presidential advisor Mojtaba Samareh Hashemi and head of the presidential office, Esfandiyar Rahim-Mashaei, are among the team accompanying the president in his tour.

Ahmadinejad heads to NY for UN session Saturday September 18, 2010 11:26PM

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's airplane leaves the Damascus airport for Algeria, September 19, 2010.

Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, after a sojourn in the Algerian capital, has set off for New York, where he is to address the UN General Assembly.

Ahmadinejad flew out of Algiers on Saturday evening following a meeting with Algerian President Abdelaziz Bouteflika after a visit with Syrian President Bashar al-Assad in Damascus earlier in the day, the IRNA news agency reported.

The Iranian leader is scheduled to deliver a speech at the 65th UN General Assembly session, which officially opened on Tuesday at the United Nations headquarters in New York City.

The annual summit is to focus on the Millennium Development Goals (MDG Summit) from September 20 to 22.

Robert Levinson, a former FBI agent, disappeared on March 9, 2007 on Kish Island where he was doing investigative work for a private security firm.

The General Assembly will then be convened from September 23 to 30, while the Security Council meeting is scheduled for September 23.

Ahmadinejad will also be delivering an address to the MDG Summit.

Ahmadinejad's top advisor, Mojtaba Samareh Hashemi, said the president will give interviews to US media outlets and meet US scholars and intellectuals and Iranian immigrants during his trip to New York.

In his talks, the Iranian president will focus on the need to change the current materialistic world management system into one based on spiritual and humanitarian values, Hashemi said.

Holocaust a lie, Israel no future - Ahmadinejad By Parisa Hafezi and Firouz Sedarat in Tehran, Reuters, September 19, 2009 6:12am

PRESIDENT Mahmoud Ahmadinejad called the Holocaust a lie overnight, raising the stakes against Israel just as world powers try to decide how to deal with the nuclear ambitions of an Iran in political turmoil.

"The pretext (Holocaust) for the creation of the Zionist regime (Israel) is false ... It is a lie based on an unprovable and mythical claim," he told worshippers at Tehran University at the end of an annual anti-Israel "Qods (Jerusalem) Day" rally. "Confronting the Zionist regime is a national and religious duty."

Mr Ahmadinejad's anti-Western comments on the Holocaust have caused international outcry and isolated Iran, which is at loggerheads with the West over its nuclear program.

The hardline president warned leaders of Western-allied Arab and Muslim countries about dealing with Israel.

"This regime (Israel) will not last long. Do not tie your fate to it ... This regime has no future. Its life has come to an end," he said in a speech broadcast live on state radio.

Germany said Mr Ahmadinejad was a "disgrace to his country."

"This sheer anti-Semitism demands our collective condemnation. We will continue to confront it decisively in the future," Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier said.

White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said Mr Ahmadinejad's comment "only serves to isolate Iran further from the world."

Mr Ahmadinejad won support from Sayyed Hassan Nasrallah, leader of Lebanon's Iran-backed Hezbollah which fought a 34-day war with Israel in 2006. "Our belief and creed ... remain that Israel is an illegal entity, a cancerous tumor, that must cease to exist," Nasrallah said in a televised address.

Mr Ahmadinejad will appear next week at the United Nations General Assembly and Tehran will hold talks on October 1 with major powers worried about the Islamic Republic's nuclear strategy.

Western powers are concerned by what they have called Tehran's defiance and "point-blank refusal" to suspend uranium enrichment and address the issue as demanded by U.N. Security Council resolutions since 2006.

Instead of directly addressing those demands, Iran handed world powers this month a proposal that spoke generally of talks on political, security, international and economic issues but was silent on its nuclear program.

Diplomats familiar with the Iranian proposal said it was vague and did not appear to pass "the smell test."

US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said it was time Iran showed it is serious about addressing international concern. "There will be accompanying costs for Iran's continued defiance: more isolation and economic pressure," she said. <http://www.adelaidenow.com.au/news/breakingnews/holocaustaliesraelnofutureahmadinejad/storve6frea7u1225776902106>

Ahmadinejad: Israeli PM an assassin Wednesday September 22, 2010 4:50PM

Iran's President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad (L) in interview with CNN's Larry King.

Iran's President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad says the Israeli prime minister is a professional assassin, who should be tried for his crimes against the people of Palestine.

"[Benjamin] Netanyahu should be tried in court for blockading Gaza and massacring innocent Palestinian women and children," Ahmadinejad said in an interview with CNN's Larry King on Wednesday.

"Netanyahu is a professional assassin. All dictators in history accuse others to turn the spotlight away from themselves," the Iranian president said when asked about the Israeli prime minister's worries about Iran.

"It is questionable [why] American media feel responsible for this person (Netanyahu)," Ahmadinejad said, adding that "you (American media) are afraid of Netanyahu's warmongering."

The Iranian president said the US and Israel's nuclear weapons are the main threat to the world, and they are mistaken to think they can divert attention from this issue by using propaganda campaigns and spreading lies about others. "Iran is firmly after the nuclear disarmament of the US and Israel."

Ahmadinejad added that Israel is an "illegitimate regime" and an "occupier" and that the US easily starts wars and massacres people, "they are not qualified to have nuclear weapons and should be disarmed as soon as possible."

When asked about the fate of a former FBI agent who allegedly disappeared on Kish Island, the Iranian president said a "joint Iranian-American intelligence committee is to investigate the matter."

US officials have dismissed suggestions that Levinson was on assignment for a US government agency.

Iranian authorities have announced that Tehran has no information on the matter but they stand ready to work with the FBI if asked by Washington.

'Bahrain against anti-Iran threats' Thu Sep 23, 2010 1:38AM

Bahrain's premier Khalifa bin Salman Al Khalifa

Bahrain's premier Khalifa bin Salman Al Khalifa says has voiced the Arab country's strong opposition to threats against Iran.

"Iran's security is equivalent to Bahrain's and the Middle East's security and the Bahraini government and nation will not accept any threat or aggression against the Islamic Republic of Iran," Al Khalifa said in a meeting with Iran's Interior Minister Mostafa Mohammad-Najjar on Wednesday.

The Iranian minister arrived in the Bahraini capital, Manama, on Sunday to attend a two-day meeting on Iraq's security. Officials from Turkey, Jordan, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Egypt also attended the meeting.

"Enough of wars that have left the region crippled. We look forward to making dialogue the best means to settle all disputes," Bahrain's prime minister said.

He also described Iran's recent position on the global issues as "prevailing and appropriate", adding that "This attitude has contributed to sustainable security in the region and the world and created a feeling of pride within the Muslim world." During the meeting Najjar told the premier that Iran favors a peaceful and stable region.

"Extraterritorial powers however," he continued, "wish to destabilize the region in order push forward their ill-fated goals."

Ahmadinejad sparks US fury over 9/11 remarks at UN General Assembly

From:AFP, September 24, 2010 8:58AM

IRANIAN President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad has told the UN that most people believe the US government orchestrated the September 11 attacks, setting off American fury at the General Assembly.

The US led an enraged Western walkout after Mr Ahmadinejad's latest incendiary remarks, which also attacked Israel and accused the West of monopolising nuclear power - at a time when his country faces nuclear sanctions.

Two US officials who had been watching the speech led the protest over the September 11 comments.

The British and other European Union delegations quickly followed after Mr Ahmadinejad said most Americans believed their government was involved in the 2001 attacks. Canada boycotted the speech even before it started.

The Iranian president said there was a theory that "some segments within the US government orchestrated the attack to reverse the declining American economy and its grips on the Middle East in order also to save the Zionist regime".

"The majority of the American people as well as other nations and politicians agree with this view," he declared to the astonished chamber.

About 3000 people died in the attacks by al-Qa'ida suicide attackers who hijacked jets and flew them into the World Trade Centre in New York, the Pentagon in Washington and a field in Pennsylvania.

The US mission at the UN furiously slammed the Iranian leader in a statement released even before Mr Ahmadinejad had finished speaking.

"Rather than representing the aspirations and goodwill of the Iranian people, Mr Ahmadinejad has yet again chosen to spout vile conspiracy theories and anti-Semitic slurs that are as abhorrent and delusional as they are predictable," said Mark Kornblau, spokesman for the US mission.

Canada's Foreign Minister Lawrence Cannon called Mr Ahmadinejad's comments "unacceptable" and "a blatant violation of international standards and of the very spirit of the UN".

The Iranian leader has frequently angered the US, Israeli and other delegations with his speeches at the UN General Assembly. Last year there was a walkout after his comments which the US mission then called "hateful, offensive and anti-Semitic rhetoric".

This year's speech also included inflammatory comments about Israel.

"The Zionists committed the most horrible crimes against the defenseless people in the wars against Lebanon and Gaza," Mr Ahmadinejad told the assembly.

"The Zionist regime attacked a humanitarian flotilla in blatant defiance of all international norms and kills the civilians," he said, referring to an Israeli assault on a Turkish ship taking humanitarian aid to Gaza in May.

With Iran at the centre of a growing international showdown over its nuclear program, Mr Ahmadinejad went on to condemn "some" of the permanent members of the UN Security Council - Britain, China, France, Russia and the US - for monopolising nuclear power.

He said the criticism of Iran comes "at the same time they have continued to maintain, expand and upgrade their own nuclear arsenals".

He said that 2011 should be declared a year of nuclear disarmament - "Nuclear Energy for All, Nuclear Weapons for None".

Western nations accuse Iran of seeking a nuclear weapon and the United Nations has imposed four rounds of sanctions against the Islamic Republic.

Mr Ahmadinejad did not mention the dispute in his speech, which came only a few hours after US President Barack Obama told the General Assembly that the door was still open to a negotiated settlement to the dispute.

Germany Will Become Islamic State, Says Chancellor Merkel

September 22, 2010 - Paul Williams, PhD

Chancellor Angela Merkel said that Germans have failed to grasp how Muslim immigration has transformed their country and will have to come to terms with more mosques than churches throughout the countryside, according to the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung daily.

"Our country is going to carry on changing, and integration is also a task for the society taking up the task of dealing with immigrants," Ms. Merkel told the daily newspaper. "For years we've been deceiving ourselves about this. Mosques, for example, are going to be a more prominent part of our cities than they were before."

Germany, with a population of 4-5 million Muslims, has been divided in recent weeks by a debate over remarks by the Bundesbank's Thilo Sarrazin, who argued Turkish and Arab immigrants were failing to integrate and were swamping Germany with a higher birth rate.

The Chancellor's remarks represent the first official acknowledgement that Germany, like other European countries, is destined to become a stronghold of Islam. She has admitted that the country will soon become a stronghold.

In France, 30% of children age 20 years and below are Muslims. The ratio in Paris and Marseille has soared to 45%. In southern France, there are more mosques than churches.

The situation within the United Kingdom is not much different. In the last 30 years, the Muslim population there has climbed from 82,000 to 2.5 million. Presently, there are over 1000 mosques throughout Great Britain - many of which were converted from churches.

In Belgium, 50% of the newborns are Muslims and reportedly its Islamic population hovers around 25%. A similar statistic holds true for The Netherlands.

It's the same story in Russia where one in five inhabitants is a Muslim.

Muammar Gaddafi recently stated that "There are signs that Allah will grant victory to Islam in Europe without sword, without gun, without conquest. We don't need terrorists; we don't need homicide bombers. The 50 plus million Muslims

(in Europe) will turn it into the Muslim Continent within a few decades."

The numbers support him.

The Other "Jewish National Home"—in Siberia. By John Gee

google maps

In June, The New York Times reported that a Chinese company was considering making a deal with Russian firms for iron ore to be extracted from a potential opencast site at Kimkan in Siberia. China is very interested in partnerships that will give it access to a wide range of Siberian resources.

Among the areas likely to feel the impact of increased Chinese spending will be one officially called the Jewish Autonomous Oblast (usually translated to English as "region") and loosely termed Birobidzhan, after its main town. Kimkan is in this area. There are probably fewer than 2,500 Jews still living in the region, but the town of Birobidzhan has two functioning synagogues, and is home to the Jewish National University. The university teaches Hebrew for reasons of research and religion; local Jews speak Yiddish and Russian, Yiddish having been the main language of Jews across Eastern Europe before the Second World War. The collapse of the Soviet Union allowed freer communication with the outside world, and contacts with overseas Jewish organizations and communities have grown markedly in the past 20 years.

The idea of establishing a territory where Soviet Jews would congregate was already under discussion in the mid-1920s. From 1925 to 1927, some rural Jewish settlements were established in the Crimea, supposedly as the vanguard of a movement of hundreds of thousands. The Zionist leadership in Palestine, however, was alarmed at the prospect of a Jewish republic being established so close to areas where many of the Soviet Union's three million Jews lived, and shocked by the enthusiastic response of Jewish workers internationally, at a time when migration to Palestine was at a low level. It therefore came as a relief when the Soviet leadership lost interest in promoting a Jewish national republic in the Crimea.

Instead, a Jewish region was initiated much further afield—in Siberia. Stalin was the driving force behind the new initiative, proposed in 1928. Most Soviet Jews had no desire to go there, however, regarding the area around Birobidzhan as a remote, isolated and backward region with nothing to commend it.

As a result, the Jewish Autonomous Region was not launched until 1934—and even then it was far from having a Jewish majority. Nevertheless, while it was a favored project, the Soviet authorities were prepared to commit resources to making it function. A Yiddish newspaper, the Birobidzhaner Stern ("Star of Birobidzhan"), was founded—and still exists, but as a mainly Russian paper with some Yiddish content. (Yiddish was taught in Birobidzhan's schools.) Stories of Jewish migrants engaging in work on the land and in factories were presented as part of Soviet Jews' break with the past and emergence into a bold new socialist future. The imagery appears as a deliberate counter to that of Zionist settlement in Palestine.

The Jewish Autonomous Region never did attain a Jewish majority. The 1939 census probably reflects conditions at the peak of Jewish settlement: 17,695 Jews made up 16 percent of the population. Yet, once the area had been named and given a role in the Soviet Union's nationality policy, it stuck, despite the subsequent decline of both the numbers and proportions of Jews in its population.

While Birobidzhan was almost certainly doomed to fail as an alternative Jewish homeland, its prospects were not helped by changes in Soviet policy. After 1935 the regime's interest ebbed, and some local leaders fell victim to the purges of the late 1930s. After the Nazi invasion of the Soviet Union, it seemed advantageous to contrast positive images of the status of Jews under Soviet rule with their fate under Nazi Germany, and Birobidzhan was cited as evidence for the superiority of the Soviet system. Pamphlets and articles circulated by communist parties abroad gave glowing accounts of life in the Jewish Autonomous Region.

From 1947 until the death of Stalin in 1953, a strain of anti-Semitism in official policy, crystallized in the "Doctors' Plot," led to closure of institutions and loss of government support. (1947 was the same year in which the Soviet Union voted in favor of the partition of Palestine, and it had friendly ties with Israel until it aligned itself with the U.S. over the Korean War— one of a number of examples of a regime simultaneously implementing anti-Semitic policies while supporting Zionism.) The Jewish presence in the region gradually declined. The collapse of the Soviet Union and Russia's realization that foreign Jewish interest in the region could be to its advantage have made the past 20 years a period of increased inward investment and cultural development—although it hasn't halted the decline of the region's population, Jewish and non-Jewish alike. The 2002 census found only 2,327 Jews in a population of 190,915. Birobidzhan was controversial from the start, and not only because of its inhospitable location. For those who considered Jews to be people linked by a religion rather than a national character, it seemed irrelevant. The Zionist movement had little to fear from it, and was much less troubled by Birobidzhan than the earlier toying with a Crimean Jewish republic, which it saw as practical and popular. All the same, it disliked a project that was so at odds with its own goals and hoped for its early failure.

Now, nestled in a curve of the Amur river on the border with China, the Jewish Autonomous Oblast stands to gain economically from Chinese investment and spending. A bridge across the Amur will soon make trade and travel easier. The Jewish community that has remained in Birobidzhan stands to experience a prosperity that must have seemed unattainable for most of its history.

Edgar Steele's Wife Stands By Man Who Tried to Blow Her Up By Caleb Hannan, September 22 2010 @ 6:06AM

From our partners at True Crime Report: Never mind that her husband tried to blow up Cyndi Steele and her mother.

One of the mainstays of the white power movement is that the truth they speak is a danger to the federal government, so they must be silenced before the masses discover the wisdom of their logic.

As you may recall from our story back in June, Edgar Steele, a white supremacist lawyer from Idaho, was charged with trying to blow up his wife and his mother-in-law. He agreed on tape to pay hit man Larry Fairfax $25,000 to plant a bomb under her car. The bomb would then cause an accident, killing Cyndi and her mom.

Cyndi Steele sounds ready to forgive the husband who tried to have her and her mother killed.

The crime would look as if someone was attacking the Steele family due to Edgar's beliefs. He'd have a ready alibi, and Fairfax would get a $100,000 bonus if an insurance policy on Cyndi paid off.

But Fairfax got cold feet and decided to rat Steele instead. The bomb was later discovered undetonated at a repair shop.

As a general rule, most wives won't come to your aid after you try to blow them up. Wives are weird that way. But while Edgar may be a lunatic Holocaust denier, Cyndi apparently doesn't blow past him on her march up the IQ scale.

She believes Edgar's defense, which claims he was framed by the feds so they could stop his juggernaut movement, halting him from becoming king of the world. Or something like that.

At a press conference yesterday, she claimed Edgar was framed because of his "politically incorrect" views. "The most dangerous part of this whole thing is that bomb that was on my car," Cyndi told KOMO-TV.

"I have come out, listening to those tapes. And to this day, I believe my husband is innocent. My husband is innocent and the only reason the FBI put him in jail is to silence him."

And just to let you know how far-reaching this conspiracy is, she called it a "'Mission Impossible'-level plot."

But despite his rhetoric of grand victimization, Edgar doesn't even seem to believe his own bullshit. Cyndi acknowledged that he's negotiating a plea with prosecutors. At the end of the day, it looks like he'll be just another dickhead to admit to trying to kill his wife.

I don't know whether Edgar Steele is guilty of trying to have his wife killed, but I do know this. This article is a hit piece and the author plays fast and loose with the truth. Point. An unflattering photo with the misleading caption, "Cyndi Steele sounds ready to forgive the husband who tried to have her and her mother killed." Wrong, Cyndi Steele does not believe that her husband tried to have her killed. This quality of journalism is an assault on the character of this publication.

What a crazed, hate filled rag the Seattle weekly is.

What kinds of trailer trash would buy such a newspaper?

Every American's right to a fair trial?

This piece of false reporting seethes with such hate-filled prejudice and racism, that the writer is rendered incapable of reporting the facts of the case.

This is the worst example of a scurrilous attack on an untried, un-convicted- and therefore innocent, man (and his distraught and loyal wife,) I have ever seen, and shows just how low American justice has sunk beneath the weight of excrement shat out by the US gutter press and media.

A few decades back one would laugh or shake one's head in dismay at similar crazy denouncements of political opponents by Chairman Mau's or Comrade Stalin's henchmen, such bile inevitably preceding the victim's ludicrous confession and execution. Yet now we see the same sort of mad, hatemongering regime established in America, where the 'confession' is called a 'plea bargain'.

The only good aspects of this article are that the writer, who rejoices in the name- Caleb Hannan, lacks both the talent and wit to write a convincing hate-piece, and the local rag he writes for is mostly unknown outside of the trailer-dwelling community, where it is appreciated for its usefulness in keeping the draught out of broken mobile home windows.

Cyndi Steele Appeals for Your Help

September 17, 2010

Cyndi G. Steele

P.O. Box 1255

Sagle, ID 83860, USA.

Dear Friends of Edgar Steele:

Edgar J. Steele has been entrapped by a legal system that presumes his guilt in the face of false charges. Ed has been in jail and solitary confinement for three months in Spokane, Washington because of false allegations that he masterminded a murder-for-hire plot to kill me and my mother.

I have NEVER believed that Ed was involved in such a plot.

Ed has defended the politically incorrect for years; people who, were it not for him, never would have had representation. Those who oppose Ed hate the truth and have threatened to harm Ed, me and our family in the past. Clearly, he is a political prisoner of the USA and quite literally, he is fighting for his life. There is a growing number of people who are banding together to make it possible for Ed to have the defense he needs against bogus government charges. We are asking you to join us.

Here is the bottom line: without experts to prove that false government tape recordings are only imitations of Ed's speech patterns (using voice cloning technology), and without experts to present the truth about alleged explosives, Ed will be "sent to the gallows" for something he didn't do.

We have an opportunity to prevent this great injustice. This is not the first time the government has made false criminal allegations against innocent people. Thus, it is our choice whether we want to be a part of the movement to stop this kind of government-sponsored insanity. Let me tell you, we sincerely need your help.

I humbly ask for your assistance, as I am financially strapped and unable to raise the amount of money necessary to provide a proper defense for my husband. [NB: The federal government has seized and frozen all of Edgar Steele's assets in order to make sure he is unable to pay for a competent defense. - HAC]

Any financial gift you can make will go directly to the Ed Steele Defense Fund, to be placed in an attorney's trust account and to be used exclusively for Ed's defense. Contributions of $50.00 and $100.00 will be greatly appreciated as we try to make our goal of $250,000.00 needed to pay both attorney fees and the legal costs of this case. Time is critical as we need to have a new attorney on board soon who will work for Ed.

Edgar needs an attorney who is willing to challenge the FBI's conduct and show that the government is wrong. Edgar can't move forward without your help in funding his defense. Your kind financial assistance will help us to engage a qualified attorney (who has already been contacted) who believes in Ed's innocence and will work vigorously to protect Ed's rights and confront the government.

These are tough financial times. But, please give a moment to think about my husband, sitting in a jail cell, day after day, with no hope, not even able to help in his own defense. I can't visit him with him to give him hope or moral support, because the judge has entered a very unfair "no-contact" order.

Even the smallest donation will go a long way to help win this case and expose the corruption behind the false charges. It may even help others who also face false accusations by the government.

Please make your contribution check / money order payable to:

My sincerest and most heartfelt thanks for your time in considering this plea for help,

FROM GERMANY – email letter to Fredrick Töben

On Mon 04/10/10 8:33 AM, piroi@uni-potsdam.de sent:

Most illustrious Dr. Töben,

I simply desire to write a humble e-mail and reflect upon the Jewish genocide as I see fit, from my personal perspective.

Since I am but an average student I expect you to forgive me if I may sound at times unacademic.

First of all I must say that I want everybody to be granted the freedom to express one's opinion no matter how provocative it may be or how many heads it might cause to shake. If I desired to claim that both the Old and New Testament were written or fabricated by several authors -hence not from God- I could do so without being subjected to legal prosecution by those who hold the power.

With regard to the persecution of the gypsies (sorry, Romany people) during WWII; I dare to say that I could deny that it ever occurred and feel perfectly safe since I am aware that the gypsies do not have an international lobby which would be worth comparing to the Jewish lobby.

The Armenian lobby is not as strong and well-organized as the Jewish, yet the diaspora-Armenians can impose pressure on the Turkish government which will eventually lead to acceptance of the historical truth, which is the Ottoman Empire had a policy of removing their Armenian minorities prior to 1923, the year of the foundation of the Turkish republic. Why am I telling you this knowing that you are extraordinarily familiar with all those things I have said.

Just let me explain the way I understand National Socialism. Let me presume to explain you why the Germans killed the Jews. Some people might say that the Germans have shown a special determination to kill the Jews. Others say that the Jews were just one category of enemy just as the Armenians were to the Ottoman Empire.

People never cease to ask questions, so here we go, why did the Germans dispose of the mentally ill, the handicapped in hospitals?

The Josef Mengele type of man would reply that by killing those poor unfortunates Germany saved that way millions of reichsmarks, not to speak of the hospital beds freed for wounded from the front. Has a point, makes sense. May be deemed cynical to a certain degree. Yet why have the Germans killed the Jews? I believe I have the answer.

By killing the Jews, the Germans wanted to kill themselves, kill the Jew within themselves -so to say-, kill that which in themselves resemble the idea they had and still have of the Jew. Kill in themselves the fat, potbellied bourgeois counting his cash to the last penny, hungry for recognition and lusting for power. I believe the Germans never really understood that certain qualities they attribute to the Jews, calling them baseness, spinelessness, avarice, greed, lust for domination, and facile malice are fundamentally German qualities, and if the Jews ever showed these qualities, it is because they have always dreamed of resembling the Germans, of being Germans.

Maybe the Jews adopted these qualities out of courtesy, out of a kind of admiration? so as not to seem distant. And the Germans? on the other hand- their dream, their German dream, was to be Jews, pure, indestructible, invincible, faithful to a Law, different from everyone else and chosen by the hand of God. Yet they are all equally mistaken, the krauts and kikes and I -as I have just noticed- typed a lot of rubbish- 'cause if ?Jew? nowadays still means anything, it means ?Other?.

The Germans failed and the worst case scenario happened. The Jews pulled through, Germany collapsed, the Jews survived and wanted up to the present day to be more German than ever before!

"Eines Tages werden mir die Amerikaner danken, daß ich die Juden in ganz Europa vernichtet habe." Hitler to Bormann, February 1945, Führer's bunker Mhm, what else to say? Yes! Um, some years ago Erika Steinbach desired to deliver several lectures on the persecution of ethnic-Germans in eastern Europe right after WWII. This was meant to take place at my university and I believe it was before I became a student, in 2008 I think...

Several students spoke of Frau Steinbach as if she were devilish, evil yet I believed that she had the right to express her opinions just like anybody else. Some people argued the the University of Potsdam would not tolerate ?revisionist views?. So I asked myself, why the heck not?

So Mr. Töben, although I might differ from you in opinion to several historical occurrences I would be delighted if you came to our university. Why don't you apply as a prof or something. I believe it could prove to be a very interesting, not to mention provocative, experiment. Alright! 'Nuff said

Yours sincerely, Daniel Piroi - check link below: <http://www.uni-potsdam.de/>

Dear Daniel Piroi: I would love to accept your invitation to speak at your university. Unfortunately were I to take off from Australia or elsewhere and head off to Berlin, then I would immediately be arrested and imprisoned upon arrival and you would miss out on what I would have to say. Now, that would be sad, wouldn't it? Cheers. Fredrick

Study: More credit due to Neanderthals

By Staff Writers, Denver (UPI) Sep 21, 2010

The long-held belief that Neanderthal man developed "modern" tools only through contact with more advanced Homo sapiens is wrong, a U.S. researcher says. Julien Riel-Salvatore, assistant professor of anthropology at the University of Colorado, Denver, has challenged a half-century of conventional wisdom maintaining that Neanderthals were thick-skulled, primitive "cavemen" overrun and outcompeted by more advanced modern humans arriving in Europe from Africa, a university release says. "Basically, I am rehabilitating Neanderthals," Riel-Salvatore says. "They were far more resourceful than we have given them credit for."

Riel-Salvatore identified projectile points, ochre, bone tools, ornaments and possible evidence of fishing and small game hunting at archaeological sites associated with a culture of people known as the Uluzzian throughout southern Italy. They emerged in an area geographically separated from modern humans. "My conclusion is that if the Uluzzian is a Neanderthal culture it suggests that contacts with modern humans are not necessary to explain the origin of this new behavior," Riel-Salvatore says. "This stands in contrast to the ideas of the past 50 years that Neanderthals had to be acculturated to humans to come up with this technology," he said. "When we show Neanderthals could innovate on their own it casts them in a new light. It 'humanizes' them if you will."
