

The Holocaust and the conundrum of self-blame

By Carolyn Yeager, Monday, 2 May 2016, 02:12

The release of Eric Hunt's new Holocaust revisionist film "Questioning The Holocaust: Why We Believed, Part 1" has brought to the fore some disagreements within the revisionist community. Nothing too unusual because they've always been there, but interestingly, it spills over, just by chance, to include the Alt-Right community too.

Nothing too unusual because they've always been there, but interestingly, it spills over, just by chance, to include the Alt-Right community too.

What I'm speaking of is revisionist Michael Hoffman's complaint to and about Eric Hunt, and also Kevin MacDonald's recent article posted at The Occidental Observer titled, "Northern Europeans less prone to "blaming the other." These separate items come together in the question of "Who is to blame" for the problems facing White European peoples in the 21st century.

When it comes to the "Holocaust", the so-called Alternative Right de factoposition (wherein I place Kevin MacDonald) is that Hitler was responsible and all we can do is admit it and move on. It does no good to waste any time on it.

Revisionism, on the other hand, deals in depth with the Holocaust in which Hitler plays an important role because the never-found "Plan" to exterminate the Jews allegedly was ordered by him. Most revisionists think the mainstream image of Hitler also needs revising, and it can only get better since it could not get any worse. But there are those who want to leave Hitler where he is, in the dog house, and deal only with certain specific falsifications and "exaggerations" that have allowed the Holocaust legend to be used as a tool for Jewish rapaciousness. Michael Hoffman is one of these.

Eric Hunt's new film adds some detail to how Jews have created false horror stories from a situation that was not horrible enough to suit their purposes. The two major themes are 1) explaining how the homicidal gas chamber / fake shower room lie worked and 2) captioning photos of emaciated victims of Allied bombing to falsely present them as victims of Nazi gassing, shooting or starvation programs. But strangely, Michael Hoffman finds this unfair to Jews!

Before the film was released for viewing, but was announced online at Questioningtheholocaust.com, Hoffman sent an email to Hunt asking him to alter the title to "Questioning the Nazi Gassings." His reason was that to question the "Holocaust" connotes that you are questioning the persecution of Judaic people and their victimization and murder by mass shooting, and other documented acts of Nazi homicide, as he put it. Hoffman knows who he blames, and it is not the Jews.

When the film was released with the title unchanged, Hoffman composed a "Critique of the Movie" and emailed it to thirteen revisionists, including Eric Hunt. In it, he first quoted both Hitler and Goebbels making what he considers 'genocidal' statements toward Jews. (I disagree they are genocidal.) Then he wrote:

Hitler and Goebbels' genocidal views of Judaic persons are absent from Part One of your film and this is unfortunate because by omitting them, and without attempting to explain them or place them in context, your film itself becomes a type of propaganda. When Israeli rabbis talk about Palestinians the way Hitler and Goebbels spoke (as above) about Judaic persons, we rightly declare that the rabbis are preaching genocide. If we hold them to this standard, how can we fail to hold the top Nazis to the same standard, based on their own documented statements?

Hoffman is taking a universalist view by equating Palestinians with Jews in Germany and Israeli rabbis with 'Nazis' when the situations are far from identical. It is this universalist outlook that is really the crux of his difference with Eric Hunt's film and with people like myself. In Hoffman's moral universe, Jews are equal to Germans and must be treated equally and their case given equal time in the film (even though the film is meant to counteract the endless hours given over to the purely Jewish version of the "Holocaust" in the mainstream media). Hoffman doesn't take his own side. Even though he is of German heritage, he shows no favoritism for Germans over Jews, or over Palestinians.

Hoffman says he doesn't believe there were homicidal gas chambers, but that doesn't mean too much because he still believes many Jews died at the hands of the 'Nazis' and that needs to be pointed out. He finishes with:

The deaths of (at the very least) many tens of thousands of Judaic civilians at the hands of the Nazis was not always, or mainly, due to typhus or starvation. In many cases they were intentionally liquidated by gunfire. Soviet Communists and their western Allies were no less guilty of crimes like this, but to whitewash the German crimes that were indeed committed, weakens your argument and makes your movie an easy target for dismissal, which would be a shame since you make many valid and important points.

I am amazed at this kind of thinking, although I've long been aware of Hoffman's extremely anti-Nazi views. Still, to show greater concern for "Judaics" than for the people of your own blood, in the name of fairness, and probably Christian cross-racial values, is a fault, not a virtue ... even in the eyes of Kevin MacDonald, according to his article linked to above. His subject is a standard one for him - the altruism and individualism of Northern Europeans that causes us to "more readily take the point of view of the other when assigning blame." MacDonald tells us how and even why this works, and that it works against our best interests in the racial struggle we are now engaged in. But he does not tell us what to do about it. Of course, obviously we should take our own side. But does he? Sadly, not all the time. He is himself an example of this northern European trait, trapped in it himself, along with Michael Hoffman. MacDonald writes:

Taking Our Own Side We tend to take the point of view of the emotionally disinterested, rational observer, not swayed by personal interest. So we are less likely to blame others for problems and try our best to see the situation from the other person's point of view.

Not biased in our own favor. But he acknowledges we need to be biased in our own favor. Bias is good, when it's for our own group against a competing group. It's difficult for Northern Europeans, however, and he doesn't know how to change that. He gives us no advice. In fact, he ends on a down note, pointing to our extinction:

The European proneness to moral idealism and disinterested moral reasoning thus becomes part of the ideology of Western suicide. This pretty well sums up Michael Hoffman. It also sums up a lot of MacDonald's readers if you go by those who comment at TOO. Pretty pathetic, because MacDonald consistently points out that Jews are hostile to Whites [Jews .. are quick to "blame the other."], yet the one White leader that he refuses to give approval to is the only one who actually took measures to protect his people from the hostile actions of the Jews. This leader forged his nation of 70 million into a racially self-aware unit through fantastic programs that developed discipline and love of one's own blood kin. He wanted to include all of Europe in that. But once the "Jewish genocide" libel was brought against him and his top leaders by the Allies immediately following the terrible, lawless World War 2, he was effectively turned into poison. The "Holocaust" reigns supreme, to the great profit of the Jews and the detriment of European peoples everywhere. Pay, pay, pay.

So one would think there would be no question for our people but to oppose the holocaust legend, but sadly that is not the case. I want to point this out, because the blindness and the hypocrisy go so deep as to make it unrecognizable. MacDonald lectures on "blaming the other" as something we must learn to do, but when it comes to "Holocaust" he is unwilling to do so. Is it because he fears the consequences? Or simply because he's too new to it after years of accepting it without question. The Alt-Right confusedly thinks that Jews are White, while taking the position that the Holocaust really happened pretty much as given and millions of Jews lost their lives because ordinary Germans under Hitler suddenly turned into murderers.

Why doesn't MacDonald take his own advice and "blame the other" instead of blaming his own people? Why isn't he taking our side when it comes to this one subject? If he did, I am quite sure he wouldn't have to be so hung up on the topic of Western suicide.

Our Jewish master Henry Kissinger once said that there is no such thing as objectivity. Jewish entrepreneur Jack Rosenberg (a.k.a. Werner Erhard of Erhard Seminars Training (EST) used to say: "You may be right but that is all you are. Just right". That is what we are up against. Jesus once said to the Jews: "You are of your father the devil who was a liar and a murderer from the beginning. Jesus knew what he was dealing with. If Michael Hoffman and Kevin McDonald knew what they are dealing with they would stop reading from the enemy's script.

Propaganda

You quote Michael Hoffman as saying that Eric Hunt's new documentary is propaganda. I agree that it is propaganda but it is also true. The word propaganda has not always been a perjorative term. It was the truth that was disseminated in digestible form. Hunt's documentary makes a few very important points and repeats them over and over again. I personally find this very helpful. The Holocaust is an extremely complicated subject unless you have been to the respective camps and have the engineering background to make fine distinctions. Hunt is presenting his case and he does so truthfully. He doesn't need to represent every point from the enemies prosecutory version.

What about Jürgen Graf?

What about Jürgen Graf? In his book "Der geplante Volkstod" he says he believes that 1-1,5 millions of jews were shot in the USSR by the Einsatzgruppen or by the Baltic troops. And the losses of the jewish partisans are not included in this. If I understood he believes in the russian documents and his opinions are not dfferent from the mainstream. He lives in Russia, but he said that the coming book from him and Mattogno will come to quite the same conclusions.

I don't believe that there were a genocide of jews in the East. Just criminals and partinsans were shot and there were many shootings because of the deeds of the partisans but these were justified and legal. When the russians came back, the towns were full of jews. I think the real number must be 100 000 or 150 000.

What do you mean by the Baltic troops?

There is no way the Einsatzgruppen shot and buried (with no trace?) 1-1.5 million in the time and with the resources they had. You need to properly translate a large enough portion to include everything he says about it. But I know they were coming up with big numbers from the Soviet Archive. I heard from both of them, that they were disappointed in what they found and I would not be happy with it ... but it was a couple years ago. I have to look for it, which takes time that I don't have. This, however, has nothing to do with Eric's documentary Part 1.

The way to deal with this

The way to deal with this objektivitätsfimmel(mania for objectivity), as Hitler called it, is to feed it with facts and logic that will lead it in the right direction.

Trying to ignore the Holocaust is no answer.

I really think that Kevin MacDonald should shut up about the Holocaust, since he admits that he knows very little about it and refuses to learn more. With the responsibilities that he holds, he really has a duty to learn the Revisionist arguments and to espouse them to the extent that he finds them correct, but since he refuses to do that, the next best thing would be if he simply shut up about the whole subject.

As for Michael Hoffmann, I have never had a good impression of him. Although he is on the correct side of certain questions, his arguments lean too much on whiny appeals to pity. He even condemns racism. He's not pro-White: he's a Catholic fanatic.

The big problem with Hoffman's position on the Holoohoax, as you describe it here, is that he does not bother to define the issue. Mark Weber and David Irving also don't bother to define the issue. They accept the extremely broad and nebulous Jewish use of the term, whereby Anne Frank, who died of typhus, is counted as a "victim of the Holocaust." Of course you can never say that there was no Holocaust if you don't even specify what it is!

Faurisson takes the correct approach of defining the issue first. The Holocaust is supposed to be the systematic killing of European Jewry by the specific means of gas-chambers. It is, furthermore, the killing of Jews only for being Jews. This Holocaust, Professor Faurisson declares, is a big Jewish lie.

I brought it up, not MacDonald

Hadding, I need to point out that MacDonald did not mention the Holocaust or anything close to it in his recent article which I quoted. I made the connection because his article was about "taking our own side" and our difficulty in "blaming the other." So I put MacDonald into the holocaust ring again, and he's probably not happy about it.

However, you might be referring to other writers for TOO who have written about Holocaust issues recently, and gotten some facts wrong. As editor, MacDonald has some responsibility for that.

I especially like the first and last paragraphs of your comment. Very good!

Even if MacDonald did not say

Even if MacDonald did not say anything about the Holocaust in this instance, he has at times done so. His editorial position is that the Holocaust is fact. I consider it pointless, even masochistic, to complain about Jewish use of the Holocaust, as MacDonald does, while treating the narrative itself as sacrosanct. This refraining looks more like a product of fear rather than good judgment.

Mr. Hadding,

Mr. Hadding,

If this Hoffman really is a knowledgeable Catholic, then he would know how racist against Jews our Church has rightfully been throughout most of our history. For many centuries we kept them under tight control for 7 generations after they had converted to Catholicism. Disabilities included barring them from certain positions including becoming Pope etc.

In Spain until deep in the 1960s the 1% rule was applied even within the Church to such an extent that a priest who had just one drop of Jewish or Saracen blood could not say a mass in public in southern Spain. Until deep in the 19th century army officers had to prove to a tribunal that their wives were free from jewish or saracen blood. There is even an order of monks created in the 15th century that still exists that is white only. The sources for my comments are found under limpieza sangre laws and a book called the Plot Against the Church.

The Catholic position on Jews

The Catholic position on Jews is that they cease to be Jews when they are baptized. Catholicism has a lot of wisdom about the Jews but on that point they are absurdly naive, and not at all racist.

REPLY

Christina Romana H. (not verified)Mon, 02/05/16

Mr. Hadding,

Mr. Hadding,

They traditionally suffer disabilities within the Church based on their blood lines including at times applying the 1% rule. That is based on race. And that is after they have been baptised. Of course Jews are part of the Church after baptism while still subject to suspicion and control.

By your definition of matters Mother Mary and the 12 apostles would not be Christians but Jews. I suppose your concept of race differs from mine. I consider race and country secondary to religion which is why I am a supporter of monarchy and Catholic fascism.

Still, Catholic fascism and national socialism were allies years ago and there is no reason not to be allies now.

I can appreciate Hoffman's concern over clumsy and unhelpfully worded public utterances, but there is something in the tenor of this comment that invites reflection. Incidentally, listen to Hoffman from about 8m. Also: I heard or read fairly recently that Hoffman is in fact an ethnic Jew who converted to RC. MacDonald Bears False Witness

A lie in order to be a lie must contain a truth. Without the anchor of truth, the lie would sink, dissolve and disintegrate. The truth is indestructible.

Writers like Michael Hoffman, Kevin MacDonald and Glenn Beck embrace the dissent in order to nullify the dissent. This is made acutely manifest by the temerity of these "professors" concerned with easy sales.

Years ago the California Orange County Register published my "Letter to the Editor" entitled, "I Was at Dachau Too." My eye witness account affirmed that the claim that the Christian German Nationalists conducted genocide of the Jews is false. On that same day a deluge of death threats arrived and the tires of my Mercedes Unimog were slashed.

Nevertheless, I still live and affirm the truth: "There will be peace and prosperity in the Middle East and everywhere else when the Jews are removed."

TOO and Kevin MacDonald

I can't view the video. I'm in Berlin and it's blocked. I have a lot of respect for TOO and Kevin MacDonald. Their articles, especially those on Jews are outstanding. That said, they are very weak on history, particularly the so called holocaust. Professor MacDonald may be afraid of the repercussions if he took the position there was no holocaust or it might be because he's not German, so he doesn't care too much. Either way, he deletes comments saying the holocaust didn't happen and other revisionist comments too. That is why I stopped commenting on TOO articles about 2 years ago. He deleted one too many of my comments, so I just read the articles now. It's his website so of course he has a right to run it as he sees fit.

I posted Benjamin Freedman's speech on how the Jews offered to bring the USA into WW I on Britain's side in return for Palestine. Freedman knew the main players personally, he attended the Versailles conference himself and he was even Jewish (by blood no less) and his conscience caused him to convert to Christianity. TOO deleted the comment. I posted an amazing video of 200,000 Czechs pledging loyalty to Germany in 1942 as evidence that we have been lied to and not all Czechs hated Germans. The comment was deleted. I think I probably also related my personal experience of meeting a Czech woman with a German grandparent and perhaps the German guy I met who was with his family in the Czech Protectorate during the war. Relations with the Czechs were fine until the war ended. Then things changed fast. I also relayed commentary and film from David Irving's website. At Reinhard Heyrich's funeral, many admiring Czechs attended. Himmler's son was only a boy but recalled the many Czechs there. Another commenter objected, there was some kind of discussion and it was all deleted. I guess even if you're shown actual film footage of something, that still can't overcome 70 years of lies. I too am amazed by seeing 200,000 Czechs in 1942 Prague pledging loyalty to Germany, but not so much any more since we now know the allies lied about virtually everything.

The Jews said millions of people died at Auschwitz. We were told Auschwitz was the mother ship of the holocaust. For over forty years we were told that was where most of the killing was done. Now, they've reduced the estimate by 3 million to 1 million deaths, still without a shred of proof. Then the Jewish head of Auschwitz admitted to David Cole in the early 1990's that they had been lying for 40 years - the gas chambers were not original. They were built after the war. (Re)built he claims. But they had told visitors for at least 40 years that what they were looking at were original. They lied. Then Robert Faurisson exposed the lie about the 2.5 million Jews Rudolf Hoss supposedly confessed to murdering. He exposed an Englishman's book in which Hoss's Jewish torturer admitted they wrote up Hoss's phony confession (in English) and beat Hoss for days before he signed it. The Englishman that wrote the book enjoyed this immensely. But Faurisson explains that these two idiots didn't seem to realize they were exposing the 2.5 million "confession" as worthless. That explains how even the holocaust promoters now say that no more than 1 million died at Auschwitz. On top of this, we know that not one single person was ever given an autopsy and shown to have died of gassing. And we have numerous engineers and professors (PHD's) who explain that scientifically, the claims about the holocaust are impossible (Professor Fritz Berg, Professor Arthur Butz, PHD candidate and Max Planck Institute employee Germar Rudolf, engineer Fred Leuchter). Revisionists have science on their side. The other side has no people like this, just eyewitness accounts of which so many have been exposed as lies. We now know the Jews lied about soap and lampshades.

I haven't seen Michael Hoffman's objections, but we know all these things have been exposed as lies. This was supposed to be the holocaust. If they're now saying, "no, sorry we lied to you for forty years. It was actually done with bullets". First, you'll have to prove that. Second, that is not the "holocaust" - your lies about soap and lampshades was the holocaust. David Irving (whom I admire immensely) says it didn't happen at Auschwitz, but rather the Rheinhard Camps. I'm not interested in new theories. The Jews and their allies have been thoroughly exposed as liars. Proof means, digging up ground and showing us corpses, or their remains. They haven't done this and refuse to do this, because they know there are no masses of bodies with the numbers they have claimed.

Kevin MacDonald is half German and half Scottish. But he seems to be most comfortable with Anglo thinking and British colleagues. His take on WW2 is from the British-American perspective and he's comfortable with that. Socially comfortable, for sure.

As with you, most of my comments at TOO do not go through -- usually because my brand of criticism is not appreciated there. I started the above article as a comment to his, but doubted it would make it and decided to write something here where I can say just what I want.

I know you to be polite and diplomatic so I'm glad you told us about how your comments have been deleted. It helps in understanding how strongly MacDonald feels the need to distance himself from "Hitler." I think he chooses, as Hadding said, to remain ignorant about the Holocaust and Hitler on purpose. He doesn't want to change his mind.

In a comment he just wrote yesterday at the current article on TOO, by Andrew Joyce, he replied to a JP who said this: "I just saw a tweet from Professor MacDonald cheering on those who trash "neo-Nazis," the "ignorant" Redneck and Chav 88 crowd" with this:

Immediately upon Hitler being

Immediately upon Hitler being elected Chancellor, Jews went on the attack with wild propaganda stories and holding massive anti-German rallies in New York with leading American politicians in attendance. Shortly after this, Jews began a worldwide boycott of German goods which also received attention in the international media. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=myh-dqvUgYA>

This rally was held 60 days after Hitler was elected and they claim (inferring massive) assaults were carried out on the Jewish population. That is simply not true. Germany had an estimated 500,000 to 600,000 Jews in 1933. The biggest act of violence against Jews before the war began occurred on "Kristallnacht" in 1938, which occurred after a Jew named Herschel Grynszpan murdered a young German diplomat named Ernst vom Rath in France and an estimated 98 Jews were killed. Two years earlier a different Jew murdered the National Socialist Wilhelm Gustloff. Almost no Jews were killed in Germany prior to the war and they walked around freely until, in 1941, when those that didn't leave Germany were arrested and shipped east, incarcerated in concentration camps as "enemies of the state". Between 1933 and 1939 several hundred thousand Jews left Germany for other countries. Almost no Jews were attacked or killed before the war started.

How touching to hear those lying American igoramuses such as New York governor Al Smith expressing concern for Jews. But apparently he had no problem with Jews murdering millions of Ukrainians at the exact same time he's making false accusations against Germany. In the early 1930s millions of Ukrainians were deliberately killed in the Holodomor. Here, Vladimir Putin explains the Jews completely dominated the government and were the murderers.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7bSAB50PkwQ>

It's remarkable how this has been hidden from discussion for 100 years.

In 1936 the Jewish Board of Deputies made a huge cash donation to Winston Churchill with the understanding he would begin attacking Germany, first in the media and later as Prime Minister. Other wealthy Jews followed up immediately with large cash bribes to Churchill. The Jews "bought" Churchill.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=CItmmadubBU>

I am not aware if Germany had any knowledge of this, but Hitler warned the Jews in a speech in the late 30's or early 40's that they had better stop pushing the world towards war, because they would suffer too. It was a warning. One I find completely understandable. In 1938 or thereabout Chaim Weizmann, the leader of Zionism and later the first president of Israel made a remark the historians Ernst Nolte and David Irving say was a significant factor in Germany's harsher policy towards Jews once the war started. Weizmann said Jews worldwide were united in their desire to fight and defeat Germany. The remark received international media coverage, including in Great Britain's leading newspapers. In 1941, a few short years later most of Germany's Jews were sent to concentration camps in the east. Until then Jews were free to go about their lives with few restrictions.

In 1940 the American Jew Theodore Kaufman published his book "Germany Must Perish" to praise from some of the USA's leading publications in which he called for the sterilization of the German people, laying out a detailed plan on how to accomplish this.

In early 1938 the Polish ambassador to the US, Jerzy Potocki reported back to Warsaw on his observations of the American political scene:

The pressure of the Jews on President Roosevelt and on the State Department is becoming ever more powerful... The Jews are right now the leaders in creating a war psychosis which would plunge the entire world into war and bring about general catastrophe. This mood is becoming more and more apparent. In their definition of democratic states, the Jews have also created real chaos; they have mixed together the idea of democracy and communism, and have above all raised the banner of burning hatred against Nazism.

This hatred has become a frenzy. It is propagated everywhere and by every means: in theaters, in the cinema, and in the press. The Germans are portrayed as a nation living under the arrogance of Hitler which wants to conquer the whole world and drown all of humanity in an ocean of blood. In conversations with Jewish press representatives, I have repeatedly come up against the inexorable and convinced view that war is inevitable. This international Jewry exploits every means of propaganda to oppose any tendency towards any kind of consolidation and understanding between nations. In this way, the conviction is growing steadily but surely in public opinion here that the Germans and their satellites, in the form of fascism, are enemies who must be subdued by the 'democratic world.' (February 9) 32

On January 12, 1939 Ambassador Potocki reported back to Warsaw:

The feeling now prevailing in the United States is marked by a growing hatred of Fascism and, above all, of Chancellor Hitler and everything connected with Nazism. Propaganda is mostly in the hands of the Jews, who control almost 100 percent radio, film, daily and periodical press. Although this propaganda is extremely coarse and presents Germany as black as possible—above all religious persecution and concentration camps are exploited—this propaganda is nevertheless extremely effective, since the public here is completely ignorant and knows nothing of the situation in Europe. ... All these things were going on while Germany was repeatedly saying it desired no war with Great Britain, France or any other western European country.

This international onslaught against Germany illustrates very well, I think, Jews culpability for WW II.

During the war Soviet propagandist and Jew, Ilya Ehrenburg, wrote newspaper articles and dropped leaflets on advancing Soviet soldiers urging them to kill every last German and rape German women. Two million German women were gang raped at the end of the war. Non-German, east European women were also raped. The Jews honor Ilya Ehrenburg, where he is buried, in Israel.

I am not sure what "Holocaust" Michael Hoffman or anyone else says Germany carried out. The Jews paid Churchill to start WW II and murder millions of Germans. They incited war against Germany in every country in which they resided. The Jews were despised in many eastern European countries already for the massacres they carried out against Europeans, then as partisans they killed German soldiers.

Let us suppose that Germany did gun down hundreds of thousands or even one million Jews. Germany lost 12 million, perhaps 15 million people or more because Jews paid Winston Churchill to murder Germans and because they pushed all the allied countries into a war with Germany with hate propaganda. Am I being told Germany can't retaliate when Jews are murdering millions of Germans?

I would also like anyone to show me a statement by a German (any German) in which they called for the murder, rape or wiping out a race such as Theodore Kaufman and Ilya Ehrenburg urged.

REPLY carolynMon, 02/05/16

Here's the speech, Peter

I am not aware if Germany had any knowledge of this, but Hitler warned the Jews in a speech in the late 30s or early 40s that they had better stop pushing the world towards war, because they would suffer too. It was a warning. One I find completely understandable.

This is what Michael Hoffman quoted in his "Critique of the Movie" that he sent to 13 revisionists.

The first quote was:

Adolf Hitler: "From the rostrum of the Reichstag, I prophesied to Jewry that, in the event of war's proving inevitable, the Jew would disappear from Europe. That race of criminals has on its conscience 2 million dead of the First World War, and now already hundreds of thousands more. Let nobody tell me that, all the same, we can't park them in the marshy parts of Russia!...It's not a bad idea, by the way, that public rumor attributes to us a plan to exterminate the Jews. Terror is a salutary thing." (Hitler, A., Hitler's Table Talk: 1941-1944, Enigma, 1953/2000: 87).

The second one was questionable in itself:

Joseph Goebbels, Diary: Dec 13, 1941 (II.2.498-499:)
"As concerns the Jewish Question, the Führer is determined to make a clean sweep (reinen Tisch—lit. 'clean table'). He had prophesied to the Jews that if they once again brought about a World War they would experience their own destruction (Vernichtung). This was not just an empty phrase. The World War is here, and the destruction of Jewry must be the necessary consequence."

George Soros

Die russische Staatsanwaltschaft hat das Open Society Institute und damit verbundene Organisationen des Finanzmagnaten George Soros für unerwünscht erklärt. Die Mitarbeit in den Soros-Organisationen steht für Russen künftig unter Strafe, da diese Aktivitäten - so die russische Justiz - die Verfassung Russlands bedrohen. Zahlreiche Analysten werfen Soros vor, eine besonders aktive Rolle beim Maidan-Putsch in der Ukraine gespielt zu haben.

Nachdem ein Moskauer Gericht vergangene Woche weitere Aktivitäten von Scientology in Russland untersagt hat und der sogenannten "Kirche" eine sechsmonatige Frist setzte, das Land zu verlassen, wird es nun auch zunehmend ungemütlich für die berüchtigten Soros-Stiftungen im Land.

In einer Stellungnahme vom Montag erklärte die russische Staatsanwaltschaft, die Aktivitäten des sogenannten Open Society Institute und der Open Society Institute Assistance Foundation bedrohen die Verfassung und nationale Sicherheit des Landes. Trotz der wohlklingenden Namen dienen Organisationen wie das Open Society Institute vor allem der Durchsetzung transatlantischer Interessen und folgen dem Konzept der "soft power". Anders als bei klassischer militärischer Aggression zielen NGOs wie die von Soros oder die die US-amerikanische halbstaatliche und CIA-nahe NED-Stiftung vor allem auf zivilgesellschaftliche Einflussnahme und Destabilisierung.

Zum jüngsten Verbot der Soros-Gruppen zählt das Schließen von Büros, das Einfrieren der Finanzmittel und die das Untersagen der Verbreitung von Materialien der NGO.

Der umtriebige Finanzinvestor George Soros ist auf diesem Feld besonders aktiv. In der Regel deckt sich Soros vermeintliches Engagement für "freie Gesellschaften" jedoch mit eigenen Profitinteressen und richtet sich vor allem gegen Regierungshandeln das diesen im Wege steht. Der faktische Rauschmiss der Soros-Organisationen aus Russland ist Folge eines Gesetzes, das der russische Senat im Juli dieses Jahres verabschiedete. Auf einer "patriotischen Stopp-Liste" sind seit dem zwölf NGOs gelistet, die in Russland als unerwünscht gelten. Sieben US-amerikanische NGOs mit explizit politischem Auftrag, zwei ukrainische Diaspora-Gruppen, zwei polnische NGOs und eine selbsternannte Menschenrechtsgruppe, die auf der Halbinsel Krim ansässig ist.

Zu den namenhaftesten dieser Gruppen zählt neben der Open Society Foundation, der MacArthur Foundation und dem National Endowment for Democracy auch der US-amerikanische Think Tank Freedom House. Am vergangenen Montag hat zudem das Moskauer Amtsgericht auf Antrag des russischen Justizministeriums angeordnet, die Moskauer Filiale von Scientology zu schließen. Der Beschluss besagt, dass die Organisation die Religionsfreiheit für andere Zwecke missbrauche. Nun hat die Moskauer Niederlassung von Scientology offiziell sechs Monate Zeit, ihre Aktivitäten einzustellen.

In der Analyse "Was ist Scientology? Die Fabrikation der Mensch-Maschine im kybernetischen Lernlabor" untersucht Dr. Jürgen Keltsch die Funktionsweise der Gruppierung. Darin heißt es unter anderem:

"Das lückenlose Kommando- und Kontrollsystem behandelt den Menschen als Objekt und nicht als Person mit Menschenwürde und Menschenrechten."

Ein Ziel der Gruppe sei auch die soziale Umerziehung und "Umprogrammierung" der Gesellschaft, bei der gezielt verhaltenspsychologische Methoden angewendet bzw. missbraucht werden. Keltsch weiter:

"Die zitierten Quellen (HCO PL) zeigen, dass das Endziel des Spitzenmanagements der Organisation die Abschaffung der demokratischen Werteordnung und die Verwandlung der Gesellschaft in ein technokratisches System (Cyberfaschismus) ist."

Who Will Be Iran's Face to the World?

MAY 3, 2016 | 09:15 GMT

Summary

A U.S. Supreme Court decision that could block Tehran from accessing $2 billion worth of frozen Iranian-owned U.S. securities has provided rich fodder for sparring between hard-line and pragmatic conservatives in Iran, most notably Iranian President Hassan Rouhani and his predecessor, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. The central bank chief, Iran's vice president and the director general for political affairs in Iran's Foreign Ministry have all blamed "negligent" decisions made under Ahmadinejad's presidency for leaving the funds in European banks, which allowed them to be snatched up by the United States when more stringent sanctions were imposed. For his part, Ahmadinejad has blamed Rouhani's weaknesses in negotiations in arriving at the nuclear deal that led to easing of sanctions for allowing the United States to financially threaten the Islamic republic.

The hard-line claims that Rouhani's mismanagement of the issue amounts to robbery add heft to Ahmadinejad's recent hints that he is preparing to run for president in 2017. After all, the populist Ahmadinejad still commands support from the poor, rural and conservative population that he drew in past elections. Since Iran has yet to recover from its economic stupor incurred under international sanctions, each political decision involving the economy will fall under greater public scrutiny leading up to elections.

Analysis

February's parliamentary elections showed how appealing a moderate-reformist platform was to the Iranian public. Now, with parliamentary runoffs approaching on April 29, and the presidential elections just a year away, Rouhani and his allies have focused on promoting the benefits of their economic policies.

However, time is not on Rouhani's side. The nuclear deal signed two years into Rouhani's presidency was not implemented until the final 18 months of his first term, and the benefits from the administration's foreign investment and economic restructuring will take years to materialize.

Iran's financial system, moreover, is not yet fully integrated into the global system: Iran central bank officials have complained that there had been only "few" Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication (SWIFT) transactions because international banks are still wary of Iranian banking. Three benefits that Rouhani could quickly call upon to help the economy are increased oil exports, foreign trade and the unlocking of billions of Iranian assets frozen overseas. This is why the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling upholding a 2014 court of appeals decision affecting Iranian assets overseas has played prominently in Iran's debate over economic dependence on the West.

Rouhani v. Ahmadinejad

While he represents a socially progressive platform beyond what some hard-line conservatives find optimal in accordance with the values of the Islamic republic, Rouhani still operates within the boundaries set for him by Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. Rouhani's clerical background and decades of experience working in the Iranian government gave Khamenei assurance back in 2013 that Rouhani would not stray too far from the line he is expected to toe, an expectation he continues to fulfill. It is his agenda for social reform that bleeds his support from the rest of the ruling elite, though Rouhani continues to carefully balance his pragmatic economic and social agenda with those conservative ideals.

But some of those economically prudent decisions made under Rouhani's watch, like the cancellation of cash subsidies to 24 million Iranians, will save the government money but could harm his appeal among voters. These payments were popular during Ahmadinejad's presidency, and their absence could fuel support for an Ahmadinejad candidacy.

Still, Ahmadinejad's economic policies helped Iran incur additional sanctions. Moreover, while the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) might resent losing some of its grip over Iran's economy if Rouhani's efforts to promote free trade succeed, it loathed Ahmadinejad's destructive economic mismanagement far more. Ahmadinejad's brash personality and willingness to openly challenge the supreme leader's sovereignty over the Iranian system seriously detracted from his approval among the ruling elite as well.

The Guardian Council — which must approve all candidates running for office — might even go so far as to rule Ahmadinejad ineligible so that such a divisive figure does not threaten the government's stability. His wide support base makes this a difficult scenario to imagine, but the Guardian Council did the same to popular former President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani in 2013. Furthermore, there are certainly other conservative candidates besides Ahmadinejad who could emerge to challenge Rouhani.

Other Options

Khamenei, wishing to avoid any return to sanctions, would likely support additional candidates who support economic policies in line with those of Rouhani. Two figures who could get his support, and that of most of Iran's traditional conservative base, are Majlis Speaker Ali Larijani and IRGC Quds Force leader Qassem Soleimani. Larijani, for example, largely agrees on Rouhani's economic platform and could still move forward with Rouhani's reforms while being more sympathetic toward conservative social issues. Another potential favorite is former presidential front-runner Saeed Jalili, who could captivate Iran's hard-line factions with his piety and credentials as a veteran of the Iran-Iraq War.

While other figures might also emerge, Iran's status quo more than 30 years has been that a president gets two terms to implement his platform. Generally, most have finished their first term with high levels of support as well (Rouhani still has strong popular support despite efforts by his hard-line opponents to undermine him). Even some of Rouhani's more high-profile rivals such as Larijani have not been aggressive in challenging him, at least not yet. Nevertheless the presidential elections are an opportunity for a more firmly conservative candidate who is closer to Khamenei to be the face of Iran to the world. The supreme leader holds the ultimate levers of power in Iran, but the president is the reflection of popular demand.

KUWAIT to DNA test and tag all tourists

By Hanan Al-Saadoun

KUWAIT TIMES – The DNA testing law that will go into effect this year is aimed at creating an integrated security database and does not include genealogical implications or affects personal freedoms and privacy. Senior officials told Kuwait Times that the law, the first of its kind in the world, will only be used for criminal security purposes.

When the law (no. 78/2015) is applied, it will be binding on all citizens, expatriates and visitors too. A Kuwaiti security delegation had earlier visited Washington to study DNA testing systems there.

The National Assembly passed the DNA testing law on July 2, 2015 that will be mandatory on everyone in Kuwait in order to fight crime and terrorism. Kuwait Times was given exclusive and rare access to the DNA lab located at the General Department of Criminal Evidence in Dajeej in an effort to learn more about the latest developments regarding the law.

Senior officials in charge of the project, who spoke to Kuwait Times on the condition of anonymity, explained how the database will be used, the process of collecting samples and privacy concerns.

In an effort to learn more about the latest updates with regards to the DNA tests that will be applied in Kuwait this year on citizens, expatriates and visitors, Kuwait Times conducted the following interview with senior officials in charge with implementing the project at the Interior Ministry's General Department of Criminal Evidence:

KUWAIT: The Interior Ministry's General Department of Criminal Evidence building, where the DNA identification lab is located. — Photos by Joseph Shagra

A senior official at the Interior Ministry's General Department of Criminal Evidence.

Q: Tell us about DNA testing and what is its basic purpose?

Back in the 1980s, Professor Sir Alec Jeffery discovered that every human being has a different DNA print that could be detected in each person's deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) in unencrypted areas and genes that cannot be affected or altered by diseases. This was a scientific breakthrough that had great impact on forensic medicine and helped identify culprits by matching samples of their DNA with evidence or crime weapons found at crime scenes using Locard's exchange principle theory.

DNA tests have proven very effective over the past decade and have been used in solving many crimes by matching biological evidence collected from crime scenes with databases. Therefore, many advanced countries started building their DNA databases according to regulations that ensured information confidentiality, which is reassuring for people subject to the test, be they suspects or volunteers willingly donating their specimens to serve justice. The process started in the UK where authorities started collecting specimens from suspects in 1995, then developed to include larger segments of people.

The US comes second in this regard, as it started building its DNA database in 1998 and now includes DNA fingerprints of over 15 million people from all states. More countries gradually started following the same steps of utilizing DNA databases in criminal investigations.

Passing law number 78/2015 places Kuwait at par with those countries. Kuwait will have a database including DNA fingerprints of all citizens, residents and visitors. This law is the first of its kind in the world and Kuwait is the first country worldwide to apply the system.

A worker examines a sample using high-tech equipment at the lab.

Q: How will the test be used?

Deputy PM and Interior Minister Sheikh Mohammed Al-Khaled Al-Sabah formed a special committee to study the method of putting law number 78/2015 pertaining building a DNA database into practice. Preparations are in progress now to set the regulating charter and commence taking mandatory samples from all citizens, residents and visitors.

DNA tests will be done through specimens taken from individuals to match their DNA in paternity cases or as suspects in criminal cases. Specimens are often taken from saliva or through a few drops of blood placed on special cards. Specimens are then tested in labs according to international scientific and technical methods using special DNA examination equipment.

An official at work at the DNA identification lab in the General Department of Criminal Evidence.

Q: How will the DNA samples and specimens be collected?

a. From Citizens: Collecting samples from citizens will be done by various mobile centers that will be moved according to a special plan amongst government establishments and bodies to collect samples from citizens in the offices they work in. In addition, fixed centers will be established at the interior ministry and citizen services centers to allow citizens give samples while doing various transactions.

b. From Residents: Collection will done on issuing or renewing residency visas through medical examinations done by the health ministry for new residency visas and through the criminal evidence department on renewing them.

c. From Visitors: Collection will be done at a special center at Kuwait International Airport, where in collaboration with the Civil Aviation Department, airlines and embassies, visitors will be advised on their rights and duties towards the DNA law.

Q: How will it respect privacy?

Privacy is undoubtedly the main concern of MiI in general and the criminal evidence department in particular. It is our duty to protect the privacy of each and every citizen and resident taking into consideration that the DNA law highlighted this in articles 9, 10 and 11. Clause (A) of article 9 of the law states that "Without contradiction with any stricter penalty stipulated by another law, individuals making job-related secrets public or revealing any DNA database information they might come across as part of job duties, will be punished by a maximum of three years in prison".

Article 10 of the law also states that "Individuals forging DNA documents or knowingly using fake ones will be punished by a maximum of seven years in prison and/or a maximum KD 5,000 fine". In addition, article 11 of the law states that "Without contradiction with any stricter penalty stipulated by another law, individuals who damage the DNA database will be punished by a minimum of three and a maximum of 10 years in prison". Technically speaking from a criminological point of view, a special work mechanism has been set for labs and sample collection, which will make it hard for lab staff and other staff dealing with the samples to identify the sources of those samples, by only using special barcodes on samples and specimens. Nonetheless, the executive charter is very strict with staff members dealing with the samples in order to win the trust of citizens, residents, visitors and anyone who has access to the database.

Q: In case of detecting any medical cases, how will you handle them?

The mandatory DNA tests only target non-encrypted genes that are not affected by diseases. The test is not done to diagnose any disease or obtain medical information because such information is part of individuals' privacy and the law bans access to it.

Q: MoI has promised not to use the test for lineage or genealogical reasons. What are the guarantees it won't do so?

This has been confirmed by the law itself. In addition, MoI plans building this database with the aim of limiting crimes and accelerate culprits' identification. The database will be also used in case of natural disasters or major incidents that leave behind bodies that can only be identified through DNA tests.

Q: Will the law be applied to foreign visitors? What if they refuse to take the test?

Yes, the test will be mandatory for visitors. As the executors are responsible to collect and examine samples, we will notify relevant authorities about whoever refuses to give a sample so that they could apply the measures stipulated in the law. We will also coordinate with various airlines and foreign embassies in Kuwait so that all visitors can have a good idea about the law and the possible consequences of rejecting its procedures.

Q: What links the smart passport with DNA tests? Will providing a DNA sample allow the issuance of a passport regardless of the results?

There was a study to place all biometric data in one database, but after passing the DNA law number 78/2015, the law separated the DNA database. Although the procedures followed for issuing smart passports are done by the criminal evidence department, issuing all categories of passports is the responsibility of the citizenship and passports directorate.

Q: When will the mandatory DNA tests go in effect?

Sheikh Mohammed has already prepared the law's executive charter and submitted it to the Cabinet. So, the law will go in effect once the Cabinet approves the draft in accordance to recommendations made in the law 78/2015 pertaining DNA testing.

Q: What about eye prints or retinal scans?

Eye prints (retinal scans) are not currently adopted as criminal evidence in Kuwait due to the presence of more accurate technologies including fingerprinting and DNA. Eye prints are used in some countries but there is no international cooperation in this field due to lack of international databases of eye prints.
